CUSSA Meet Plans Season

Plans for the coming ski year were discussed at a Board of Directors meeting of the Central United States Ski Association held Saturday, June 30th at the Lee-lanah School, Glen Arbor, Michigan. The meeting was held at the Lee-lanah School, Glen Arbor, Michigan.

Matters discussed ranged from reports on the meeting of the National Ski Association in Colorado to organizational problems on the rapidly expanding Central Division.

Of particular interest to the Board members was the fact that all members of the CUSSA will have ski insurance made available to them at a 25% discount.

It was also noted that action at a national meeting was taken to change the name from the National Ski Association to the United States Ski Association.

Standardization of membership cards and other items has now been made nationally, as well as uniform classification of racers, Sullivan reported.

Sullivan also stated that until the State of Michigan's new ski area development law is fully implemented, the CUSSA will hold up further action on its own ski area development program, and will continue active support of the state program.

Memberships to last year's CUSSA members are now being mailed out, Sullivan said. Any others who are interested in supporting CUSSA, and its many activities, including its Junior Racing program, or participating in the district ski insurance program are urged to contact CUSSA at 205 E. Front Street, Traverse City.

Local Resident Among 'Most Influential'

EAST LANSING — A Grayling resident is among those called "perhaps the most influential" group of people in the nation.

The group referred to are chamber of commerce and trade association executives, who are listed in the Washington, D. C. and Canada are attending an Institute for Organization Management.

Robert G. Welch, president of the Steel Service Center Institute, Cleveland, Ohio, explains that these executives are community opinion and action leaders, daily influencing the thought and activities of countless others about them.

These people, Welch adds, take the lead in such vital community projects as urban renewal, public housing, new industry, promoting good government, education in all its forms, improving local services and attracting tourists.

As thought leaders and public spokesmen, the new ideas gained at Institute meetings are disseminated throughout the year to industrial, professional, commercial, service, social, political and other organizations.

Many of these progressive ideas, Welch points out, find expression in law through association lobbies working with legislative bodies at local, state and national levels.

Attending from Grayling was Robert M. Hayes, secretary-manager of the Crawford County Chamber of Commerce.

Expect 8,500 Troops To Train For Next Two Weeks

'Iron Fist' Division Due At Camp Saturday

Largest encampment of the Michigan National Guard, a two-month long 1962 field training season will get underway Saturday at Camp Grayling, Major General Ronald D. McDonald, the Adjutant General of Michigan, announced today.

Some 8,500 troops of the 46th Infantry Division and attached units will assemble at Camp Grayling for their 15-day training period.

Food Is $1,561,000 Item In County

(Special to the Avalanche) NEW YORK, June 25 — Judging from the way residents of Crawford County spent their money in the past year, they were in good shape financially.

It was most evident in the amount they expended for food. Their outlay in this direction was a huge $1,561,000.

Most other retail lines were also able to report gains in the year, despite a sluggish beginning.

What caused the upswing? It is attributed to a rising level of personal income, to pent-up needs and to improved confidence in the economy.

The details are brought out in a comprehensive report that covers all sections of the county, if not prepared and released by the Michigan Public Utility Commission. It is just how the average family in each locality spends the money it has left after taxes.

The $1,561,000 spent in Crawford County in the year for food, which was well above the $1,493,000 volume of the previous year, went to local bakeries, meat markets, delicatessens and other stores selling food for home preparation and consumption.

Not included were the expenditures in dining and drinking places for on-the-spot consumption of food and beverages.

The take-home food bill accounted for over 22 cents of every dollar spent in local retail stores by the average family.

Spending remained fairly steady in the year, the large outlay is ascribed to greater consumption and to the use of more expensive products.

This was more than was spent in most parts of the United States, $1,017 per household. It was $1,042 in the East North Central States.

Other retail lines also profited by the increase in consumer spending.

Those selling cars, motorcycles, boats and parts had receipts of $1,554,000, equal to 22 cents of every dollar spent at retail.

Sales of new merchandise stores amounted to $233,000, or 3 cents of every dollar.

Apparel shops had a $258,000 volume, equivalent to 16 nearly 4 cents of every dollar spent.

Training at Camp Grayling will be at the platoon-battery level. Division training mission is to prepare adequately organized and trained units capable of participating in combat operations after a minimum post mobilization training.

In carrying out this mission units will conduct squad and section refresher training, platoon-battery live fire exercises, and retraining of individuals and sub-units.

Practical bivouacs will be held during both weeks of the encampment. Battle groups, artillery battalions, tank battalions, and supporting organizations will conduct their own individual tactical bivouacs. Each organization will spend four consecutive days and nights in the field.

In addition to basic unit training, combined arms training will concurrently with basic unit training.

As troops of the 46th Infantry Division assemble at Camp Grayling, the annual division review will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday, July 14, and the division memorial service at 10 a. m. Sunday, July 15. Governor Swainson will be guest of honor at the military ball to be held at the Camp Grayling Officer's Club Saturday evening, July 14.

For the first time since he took command last March, Major General Cecil L. Simmons, of Grand Rapids, will have the entire 46th Infantry Division assembled at one point. Similarly, it will be the first field training period in his new assignment for Brigadier General Joseph W. Boardman, of Utica, who became Assistant Division Commander in March.

As troops of the 46th Infantry Division "shake down" Sunday for their encampment, officers and men of the Michigan Army National Guard's air defense units will return to their homes. The 1,000 Guardsmen, assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 210th Artillery Group (Air Defense) and 1st and 2nd Missile Battalions (NIKE-AJAX), 177th Artillery, will complete their two weeks of training at Selfridge Air Force Base and at on-site positions in the Detroit area.

Michigan Air National Guardsmen are scheduled to undergo their annual field training July 21 to August 4 at Phelps Collins Air National Guard Base, Alpena.

"SPENCER'S MOUNTAIN"
By Earl Hamner, Jr.

High on the mountain which has belonged to the Spencer family for generations lives and almost legendary white deer. When young Clay Boy Spencer goes in quest of the deer with his father and eight tall red-headed uncles, he finds it, and comes back marked for a special destiny in the world. What this special destiny is becomes the theme of Earl Hamner's enchanting novel, as we share with Clay Boy, his eight brothers and sisters, and all the rest of the family and his friends the decisive summer which follows.

It is the summer he learns the torture and the tenderness of first love.

It is the summer his grandfather Zebulon pays a call on the two lady bootleggers.

It is the summer he helps his father build a house high on Spencer's mountain.

It is the summer his city uncle brings home his sweetheart who is not Baptist but Jewish.

It is the summer they sing all night.

But most of all, it is the summer that Clay Boy never wants to end, come finally to September.

Harper Lee, author of To Kill A Mockingbird, now in its 85th week on the best seller lists says "Each character in Spencer's Mountain is memorable, because life itself flows in abundance from each. One finds pure joy in reading, for a change, a positive statement on the potentialities of man. A splendid novel."

This book is available at the Crawford County Library.

10,000 Miles Is the Magic Figure

After 10,000 miles of driving, an automobile engine has taken a severe beating with considerable wear to its moving parts.

Distributors have made 112 million spark plugs fired 14 million high voltage sparks, the water pump has pumped 400,000 gallons of water, the fuel pump 700 gallons of gas and each valve has opened and closed 14 million times.

That is why your engine needs a complete tune-up after this mileage to restore original performance, keep fuel economy at maximum and guard against engine failure on the road.

To be effective, a tune-up must be performed by a trained mechanic with the best equipment available. He must usually replace the plugs, clean the fuel pump sediment bowl, check fuel pump pressure and adjust valve lash. The points and condenser must be replaced, and the new points set for the proper opening. A gauge-check of the timing and electrical system must be made with necessary adjustments to both.

A tune-up involves several hours work and there are no short cuts possible if the job is to be done properly. Obviously, short cuts—all the way down to a quick check of points and plugs can be made by a garage interested only in turning out a "bargain-priced" job.

But this kind of job is no bargain. It is throwing money away while the essential work of re-tuning your engine goes undone. Your only bargain is in buying quality service.

Gov. Swanson Breaks Legislative Deadlock On Fiscal Reform

THE LEGISLATIVE DEADLOCK was broken by Gov. John B. Swanson when the Democratic chief executive said his hopes for fiscal reform in 1962 were "dead."

Reasons behind his abandonment of attempts to bring up an income tax for another vote, however, will be the basis for many of the fall campaign arguments.

Swanson said he gave up hope because the Republican-dominated Legislature "failed again to face up to its responsibility."

Republicans, however, have contended throughout the session that Swanson's push for an income tax was based partially on a hope that the GOP would hold firm against it. He was afraid of his chances for re-election if a statewide income tax was passed, they said.

House Republicans also will have a good deal of political fodder from Swanson's "death" announcement because of the status of tax talks when it came. The majority party in the House had seen the first of its proposed "nuisance tax" bills die in an initial vote.

Majority Leader Allison Green, King, Republican, then decided "to let the Democrats take over" to bring out an income tax program they said they wanted.

The income tax package never saw the light of debate in the House before Swanson announced the end of hope for fiscal reform.

As in 1959, when an income tax proposal passed in the House and was killed in the Senate, several Democratic members of the lower chamber were opposed to a payroll levy but said they would probably vote for it.

Swanson reportedly had asked his party House caucus members to hold out for "one last try" to pass an income tax.

An intra-party squabble, centering in Macomb County Democratic units, also may have entered into the Governor's decision to end the stalemate.

The Governor will not admit he asked for any "unit rule" among House Democrats, as he reportedly did in a caucus. Republicans likely will have good grounds for campaign material in the apparent Democratic split over the income tax.

PRESENT-DAY HISTORIANS have been very successful in digging back to find that people 50 years ago, at least a few of them, had the wisdom to predict some of the advances made in the last half-century.

Dr. Fred S. Siebert, dean of Michigan State University's College of Communication Arts, may be one of the persons whom future historians cite for foresight in the newspaper world.

Siebert predicts that the newspaper of the future will be more of a news distributor than presently and less of a disseminator of fiction, features and comics.

The primary function of newspapers 50 years from now, according to the MSU spokesman, will be to give readers an accurate and balanced picture of events of the community which it serves.

"This does not mean eliminating the interesting and unusual," he said. "It means increased emphasis on the significant, the meaningful, the important and the balanced picture."

The future trend will be to leave entertainment to the producers of television, radio, movies, and magazines, according to Siebert.

AUTOMATION, BUSINESS PESSIMISM and several other factors take the chief blame for unemployment changes.

One of the main classifications in the "other factors" is the youth in the labor force: school dropouts.

Dr. Daniel H. Kruger, associate director of Michigan State University's Labor and Industrial Relations Center, cites school dropouts as "one of the nation's most tragic manpower problems."

All past trends would indicate youth will become more pronounced as years pass, Kruger contends. It is currently estimated that one-third of the nation's young people drop out of school before completing the 12th grade.

In Michigan, Kruger said, the dropout rate is about 30 per cent. In Detroit alone there were 6,300 school dropouts during 1961, about 300 more than in the previous year.

Cuba's Progress . . .

The cold war has diverse facets. It is a war of armaments, with both sides piling up offensive and defensive weapons of unimaginable destructive power.

It is a war of trade, with both sides using their resources in an effort to become the world's dominant economic force.

It is a war for men's minds—and this may prove, the long run, to be the most important facet by far. The Soviets and their satellites are pitted against the United States and the West in a no-holds-barred campaign to convince vast numbers of people, especially in the new and uncommitted nations, that its system is the best.

So, a great many authorities believe that a vital new World need is to do a better job than in the past in pointing out and emphasizing the failures and oppressions of communism. And one of the better examples, it seems, is communism's newest bastion, Castro's Cuba which is only 90 miles from our own shores.

U. S. News & World Report, in its issue of June 11, sums up the latest information on the way people now live in Cuba and what Castro and his policies have done. It is an almost incredible story of change for the worse that has taken place in a mere three and a half years.

The magazine says, "Cuba, just before Castro, was enjoying its most prosperous years. . . . Now Cuba, the hard facts show, is an economic shambles—bulging with guns, but bankrupt." Then it cites fact after fact, based on official U. S. sources.

Before Castro, Cubans had a per capita income averaging $334 a year, third highest in Latin America. Now it has dropped to below $200.

The food situation is almost calamitous, with Cubans now eating only about half as well as in the pre-Castro days.

In addition to sharply reducing the take-home pay of Cuban workers, Castro has taken from them many valuable benefits, including overtime, vacations, bonuses, and the right to strike. Taxes, by way of contrast have gone up.

The Cuban economy, apparently, approaches a state of collapse. Gone is the U. S. market for Cuban sugar, which was the country's main source of income. Now Castro barter sugar with communist nations, receiving in return, goods which often are inferior in quality or not needed.

The Cuban currency reflects conditions. The pre-Castro peso was worth one U. S. dollar. The current Castro peso is valued at five to seven per dollar.

In only one area, it seems, has Castro made "progress"—if that is the right word for it. He has built, with Soviet arms and advice, the strongest military power in Latin American history. He has built also a

"WHITE WATER" DERBY

Soviet-model spy system. These elements, and his almost unbridled use of terror, make it possible for him to keep the nation under control and, so far, to prevent the organization of an effective counter-force. Meanwhile, conditions get worse and worse for the masses of the Cuban people.

U. S. News says at the end: "The world once more is seeing what Communism does to a country."

Interesting Events In Grayling 23 Years Ago

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 23 YEARS AGO

July 6, 1933

It was 23 years ago that Esbern Olson opened a shoe-repair store in the little store building that he has since occupied. It was a modest beginning. Soon, as his repair business developed into real proportions, he added a small stock of shoes. This business too grew and better brands were handled. This place has long been too small for his trade, and this week he has had for a long time—opening a brand-new store.

Col. LeRoy Pearson and his quartermaster corps have already opened offices at the military reservation, ready to start the 1933 National Guard training schedule. State Highway Commissioner Murray D. VanWagoner told a delegation Friday who asked that US-27 be re-routed at Higgins and Houghton lakes, that as US-27 was the first and to date the only paved highway running from the southern border to the Straits, that it should not be relocated until there are more north-south arteries. The highway now makes a sharp turn to the east to go around the two lakes, and to go west the route it is said would be considerably shorter. Too, the delegation contended, it would open up new territory and relieve congestion on the present road.

In lovely sites read Saturday evening at the First Baptist Church in Bay City, Margaret Letzkus, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Letzkus, and Mr. Virgil W. Robertson of Bay City were united in marriage before an assemblage of 125 guests. Rev. Richard A. Elva performing the ceremony. Born in Grayling, the bride will be remembered by many young friends who extend congratulations and best wishes.

I. W. Dicken of Fostoria, Ohio, is building a fine new cottage at Lake Margrethe having purchased a lake front lot last fall from Miss Horace Shaw's new cottage at Lake Margrethe, except for the finishing touches, is about completed. Modern in every respect, it has shower bath and lavatory, electric lights, electric pump for water supply, with the heating plant in the basement. All ceilings are covered with Masonite, with living room and kitchen walls of knotty cedar and bedrooms of Nuwood. There are new spring-controlled windows and cement porch on two sides of the cottage. This will be the all-year-around home of the Shaws who have spent two years at the Lake.

The Milwaukee Journal recently published an article prepared by Miss Margaret Joseph, a teacher of mathematics in Milwaukee schools, relative to the reasons why a majority of students fail in mathematics. Kathleen Warren and daughter Sherri are spending the summer with her parents, the Earl Woods. Her husband David is doing floor-tiling work in the northern coun- ties and joins her on weekends. David is studying dentistry at the University of Michigan.

THE WORLD OUTDOORS

ONE of the reasons many of us do not fully appreciate the world outdoors is that we are unable to look at nature with anything but a selfish eye. Every living thing about us is considered "worthless" if it has no personal use or value for human beings.

We overlook the fact that every plant and animal has a useful niche, and serves some purpose or value to the natural community. Poison ivy, despised by man, is a valuable plant where animals and birds are concerned. Individuals sensitive to poison ivy may find it difficult to understand that in spring deer eat the leaves of the plant, birds eat the white, waxy berries in autumn and rabbits nibble at the bark when winter snows cover other food sources. Apparently, poison ivy is toxic only to humans.

This is an obnoxious weed not likely to receive a high popularity rating with farmers or others who have encountered its sticky spines. But Scottish folks are fond of the thistle, and for good reasons.

In an early war between the Scots and the Danes, a group of Danes attempted to surprise a sleeping camp of Scottish Highlanders by creeping up on them barefoot. You guessed it—one of the unsold warriors stepped on a barbed thistle head and his shout of agony aroused the sleeping Scots who defeated the invaders and eventually made the thistle a national emblem.

The donkey is the only animal known to eat thistles, and he first stomps it to a pulpy mass.

Maybe the birds and the bees know something special about thistle. The thistle is insect polinated and the nectar seems especially attractive to bees—who are often seen dizzily performing aerial acrobatics after spending too much time among the thistles.

The Misses Margaret and Leona Gardiner of Lansing spent the weekend with their brother and family, the Vernon Gardiners. Just a Thought

The most disconcerting thought about the possibility of death is that we cannot expect to receive the warning many of us would require if we could set our affairs—and our lives—in proper order.

The hazards of travel and transportation have followed men from the days of remote antiquity. "They that go down to the sea in ships, at last built a vessel that would outride all the winds that blow came to doom in contact with a mighty iceberg in the waters of mid-Atlantic. Improved highways have become ways for engines of death to leave their scaly wrecks, and the airplane has mocked time and space but has hurried death from the sky.

But there is a highway, described in Holy Writ in figures drawn from the time, where no lion and other ravenous beast shall be found and springs of water shall be found in the desert, and along which the redeemed shall journey to everlasting life.

This is the way that Christian catered upon in Pilgrim's Progress and by his faith and the grace of God came to the blessed place where he could see the gates of the Celestial City shining beyond the river of death.

wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. Culott also viewed it in Mt. Elgin, Canada. All were very surprised to see it after such an elapse of time. Eastman furnished the grandson with as 8 x 10 still picture from the movie upon his request. Mrs. Powell, widow of the actor, is a Lake Margrethe resident. Crawford County Avalanche Thursday, July 5, 1952
